Hello Peter,
Thank you for your letter, ^{great} to hear that you will celebrate your birthday. It is fine to stay at home and invite your best friends. I had my last birthday party at home. Even if my room is ~~not~~ big, it's still ~~was~~ fun. My family has a birthday tradition to call every of my uncle to visit my home. Next year I want to celebrate my birthday as always.

Best wishes,

Egor

Hi, I want to tell you about the game "Genshin Impact".

This game have many characters. Small girls, pretty girls, and boys. The characters have ^{elementary} an power Character Fighting with enemies, with swords, magic and anower.

The game have a big world. You can explore, Fighting with enemies, swimming in the ocean and anower. You also can travelling to many cities and villages, talk to NPC, do the interesting quests.

Aim of the game is very interesting! You should find all archants of the world, help them to save their cities and at the end save the world. And find your twin!

I want to recomendate the game for kids 12+. The game is very coff cool, but it's to hard to understand for small kids! Oh, I forgot! You don't doesn't travel along, it's so difficult and teribble! Paimon, the time will be your best friend, and will help you!

I have recently played a videogame called "Half-Life". The main character that you play as scientist with the name of "Gordon Freeman". The plot of the game is that Gordon Freeman came late to the job, then the security officer greets him saying that there has been a system crash. Gordon then goes to equip his hazard suit and go to the test chamber. But when he was in chamber, things went horrible and a portal to earth got opened for aliens so that they can invade. This game takes place in a Research Facility located somewhere in the desert. Aim of the game is to reach to the alien world and defeat the big alien responsible for the invasion. I would recommend this game to my brother as he likes videogames, and this game was super fun to play.

I think writing this quote Charles Dickens wanted to show that time-wasting is awful for people. And I agree with him. Procrastination just kills people's time. For example, instead of time-wasting we can learn something new or achieve our goals. When you start feel that you don't want to do anything, you should just try to do something. I can give you an example from my personal experience. My friend wanted to learn Spanish, but he always ~~had~~ felt procrastination. After a while, he hasn't learn anything new. But my second friend started to learn English at the same time and then she has A2 level. I can't say she was interested in learning it, she needs it only for exams. But because of the exams my friend was full of motivation she passed them so well. We must fight with our procrastination when it comes to us. It all depends on you. Just wake up one morning and start doing absolutely everything you wanted to do for a long time. And then, you will see your fully changed life. So, Charles Dickens was right with the quote. Don't allow your procrastination kill your life.

As Charles Dickens once said, "Procrastination is the thief of time, collar him". I believe that what he meant by this phrase is that by procrastinating you lose a lot of time. It is so time-wasting that it makes you feel you have less time than you really do.

In my personal opinion, this saying is completely true, and here is why. Firstly, I believe that to postpone tasks and activities is to miss out on life itself. To hesitate is to waste your time, and time is the most precious thing we have. Secondly, avoidance of important tasks is the fastest path to lose all your aspirations, goals and personal interests. For example, a couple of years earlier a friend of mine discovered his talent for playing ^{the} piano. At first, everything was wonderful, but as he procrastinated more and more, his peers got ahead of him. By staying idle, he too much time, reaching the point where his talent was meaningless. Another example I have is my own. Back when I was 12 years old, I used to take karate classes. Everything was going really well, as I have won a couple local tournaments, accomplishing something I have dreamt of. However, at some point it all took a downturn. Shortly after my 13th Birthday, I started to avoid training because I was too lazy, I postponed training at home, and eventually I stopped training whatsoever. If not for my procrastination, I could have reached much more.

In conclusion, I believe that procrastination is to be fought. There's no reason why we should avoid living our lives to the fullest!
